Commodore’s Comments

by Commodore Patrick Welch

This report is actually written from the bridge of Colleen because since May 6th I am officially homeless. I put my home on Lake Merritt for sale thinking that the market being as it is the house would probably sit there for a few months at least. Not my luck. It sold in three days and I moved out, with most of my things into storage and a few essentials moved on board Colleen. It’s tight but doable and I don’t regret the move, thus far, anyway. One downside to the move was that I had to disconnect my cable service and because of that Comcast canceled my internet by the way without telling me. So for all who want to know it, my new e-mail is pwelch2006@gmail.com.

I didn’t last very long in the covered berth that I had found for Colleen last year because when I started to actually live on board I found the darkness depressing. Now, in an open slip right in front of Jack London Square, things are good.

This spring has been a busy one. I took a very spur-of-the-moment trip to Brazil for two weeks, and when I returned I had to face the move-out of the house and move-in on the boat. Undaunted, six days after I moved out another friend of mine called me up and told me to pack my bags (I hadn’t unpacked them yet) and we were off to Thailand for another two weeks. Both trips, in very different ways, were great adventures, but Brazil was definitely a place I would return to at the drop of a hat. You could start with people, food and beaches and then begin to count all of the other reasons why Brazil is a great travel destination.

So Colleen and I have begun a more intimate friendship, and while I have managed to arrange what few things I brought with me from the house in good order she is way too small for a long term accommodation. So I have begun to look at larger boats because living on board has definite appeal for me at least for awhile.

Thanks to Vice Commodore Les Cochren the first Bridge meeting that I unfortunately missed was ably handled and all important business transacted. I had no intention of missing the next Bridge meeting that was held at the home of our Roving Reporter, Clara Yeats Aseltine, but then Thailand came up, so, once again, Les stepped up to the plate and took control of that event as well. I owe Les big time for helping out like this. It is no easy feat for him to make those meetings because, as of the Fall 2010, he has taken up residency in the St. Louis area and has to fly out every time he attends one of the northern fleets events. I did hear through the grapevine that once the meeting started Alan Almquist made a motion to impeach me (fortunately!) for lack of a second.

After a well attended Opening Day on the Bay event our boating season for the Northern California fleet was officially launched. Our traditional pot-luck luncheon at Treasure Island was another great success, food a plenty for all. Steve Kadzielawa has reported more fully on Opening Day in another column here in the newsletter. When the summer issue of Classic Currents goes to press we will also have completed our annual meeting for us. The meeting will be followed by a tour of the beautifully restored 92 foot Blanchard, Wanda, now owned by Andrew Roettger whose website for Wanda can be found in this issue of Classic Currents. So for now, safe boating to all for a great summer of classic yachting.

Lake Tahoe Weekend by Jim Sweeney

July 29th and 30th
2011 LAKE TAHOE WEEKEND

Jim and Bernadette Sweeney are once again welcoming the members of the Classic Yacht Association to join them for the Antique and Classic Boat Society’s SOUTH TAHOE WOODEN BOAT CLASSIC show on the weekend of July 29-30th. The fun begins at 1700 hours Friday with a cocktail reception and barbecue at the Sweeney’s summer residence, 2291 Montana Avenue, South Lake Tahoe. The Sweeney’s are organizing the food and libations for the party and they have also promised us a few surprises to go along with the fun.

On Saturday plan to attend the WOODEN BOAT CLASSIC show, where a fabulous selection of snazzy runabouts, race boats, launches, sedans, and utilities will be on display. The featured boat will be the 30 ft 1930 Sea Lyon triple cockpit runabout WHITE SMOKE. The show will be held at the beautiful Tahoe Keys Marina. It is a judged event and trophies will be awarded for seventeen categories. The rumble of vintage engines periodically revved up at dockside and underway should boost more than a few heartbeats and a Dixieland band will add the happy sounds of jazz throughout the day. At the Marina’s Fresh Ketch Restaurant superb seafood and cocktails both indoors and alfresco are available for lunches. In addition, a variety of wine, food, and aquatic themed dry goods booths at the show will furnish casual shopping opportunities. Two-day admission tickets may be purchased at the gate or in advance at $15 per person by logging on to www.acbs-tahoe.org

To register for this weekend, kindly fill out and mail to the Sweeney’s the form that was sent to you with the special announcement of this event: James Sweeney, 116 Eye Street, San Rafael, CA 94901.
Your Rovin’ Reporter missed Opening Day on the Bay (had to attend a funeral) the first one she has missed in more years than she can count. However the enthusiastic reports confirmed that this was its usual fantastic day for kicking off our summer sailing schedule and to add to the festivities there were two birthday celebrations with cakes for Patrick and Steve. Speaking of birthdays, your rovin’ reporter saw a picture of Cynthia McMillen at her celebration of a big important birthday. There was a zero at the end, but any guess of the first number would be at least two decades lower! Way to go Cynthia!

The just completed Delta cruise was great fun. Shawn put together a wonderful weekend. A number of boats had to drop out at the last minute but Sea Gal, Eslo, Flamingo and Catherine E made a fine showing and their crews had a great time. Ranger was in the vicinity, but wasn’t able to join in the fun. Hiltot II couldn’t make the trip as Dick wasn’t feeling well. All the good wishes flowing his way should speed his recovery. The Stockton Waterfront was a terrific venue from Friday night’s ball game to the Mexican fiesta on Saturday afternoon. As we arrived at the plaza wonderful live music was playing including a harp that sounded like a full orchestra! Later the mariachi band had everyone’s toes tapping and the singing was superb. There was a free tequila tasting bar and later they served fantastic ceviche with mounds of chips and fresh salsa. The ladies were even given a little gift bag as they departed. Then it was time to head for Willow Berm and the barbeque on the dock. The tide and current made slow going so by the time the ten of us gathered around the dinner table there was a backdrop of a gorgeous sunset. It was a lovely evening and conversation around the table lasted until it was dark.

After a leisurely breakfast at the clubhouse it was time to travel again. Alan had arrived via asphalt cruiser and met our yachts at the municipal dock in Walnut Grove. After we had tied up against a fast running current, he shuttled us over to the Walnut Grove mansion of Rusty and Julie Areias where we had been invited to join him and his family for dinner. The steak and salmon was grilled to perfection.

And now – a flash from Beverly. When Les becomes commodore of NCF he will have a new flagship, Fantasea!

RBOC Updates- California budget problems will, no doubt, affect Cal Boating funding (money the agency receives from boating fuel tax and registrations). Senate Bill 623 (Kehoe) would prohibit copper based paint in California Jan 1, 2015.

Senate Bill 595 bill authored by Senator Wok would extend authority to the State Lands Commission to remove abandoned vessels from the Delta. Dept. of Boating and Waterways already has the authority to remove these vessels and has a successful program in place. This action might result in money being taken away from DBW.

The Coastal Marine Permit still being worked upon - RBOC is urging provisions to the bill to be based upon science. The Delta Plan (“water diversion”) has already been blasted by a study by a recognized objective scientific group done at Senator Feinstein’s request.

RBOC Advocating in the State Capitol by Bill Wells

Recreational Boaters supports bills and regulations that would enhance recreational boating, and opposes bills and regulations that would have a detrimental impact on the state’s three million boating enthusiasts.

The organization’s advocacy efforts include testimony in public hearings, meetings with elected officials, preparation of amendments to alleviate potential problems with specific bills, as well as the sponsorship of proactive legislation to benefit the recreational boater. RBOC also works closely in partnership with Boat U.S. on federal legislative and regulatory issues important to boaters.

Approximately 50,000 boating families, belonging to 187 boating and sailing clubs throughout California, support RBOC and its activities through both financial contributions and grass roots advocacy efforts. Boaters are encouraged to take action now to express their opposition to SB 623 (Kehoe) to their representatives in the California state Senate.

The bill passed the Senate Appropriations Committee on Thursday, May 26, without a vote and without testimony. The bill will then be taken up on the Senate Floor [Senate Third Reading] between May 27 and June 3.

This bill would prohibit recreational boaters state-wide from using copper-based anti-fouling paints on the hulls of their boats to prevent marine organisms from growing on their hulls.

The bill would impose:
1. A January 1, 2015 ban on the sale of new recreational boats with anti-fouling paint containing copper, and
2. A January 1, 2019 ban on the sale of new recreational boats with anti-fouling paint containing copper.

RBOC is opposed to SB 623 as amended on April 25 unless the bill is revised to ensure that any deadline for a ban on copper-based antifouling paint does not take effect until there are alternatives that are effective, available, and affordable.

Vice Commodore Les Cochren put together a fun filled Memorial Day weekend at Old Sacramento and the Sacramento Marina. Sue and I fired up the motors in the old Ranger and after topping off the fuel tanks headed up Georgiana Slough early in the morning on Thursday May 20. The current was strong due to the spring runoff and there were a lot of tree trunks and flotsam coming downstream. When we got to the Georgiana Slough Bridge there was a huge tree right under it but the bridge operator warned us about it and so we were fortunately able to avoid it.

The gentleman operating the bridge that day was Jens Hanson, former owner of Ranger sister ship Huapala (Alex Kanwetz). Whenever Jens sees Ranger he always asks how Alex and the boat are doing. I reported to him that all was well and that Huapala was doing great the last time I saw her.

After we pulled out onto the Sacramento River the Department of Water Resources had a barge and several boats in the area doing some research work. I spoke to one of the engineers and he said they would be out of the river in a few days. We cranked the motors up to 1800 rpm to try to keep ahead of the swift current and the random bicyclist we saw along the shore. Les was waiting at the dock at the Sacramento Marina and helped guide us into a nice covered slip next to his Rivercat. After securing the lines and fenders we sat in the cockpit and caught up on all of our recent activities. Les seems constantly on the move having spent time in the mid-west and Arkansas as well as visiting Italy over the last several months.

2011 was the 38th annual traditional (Dixieland) jazz festival in Old Sacramento just a few hundred yards up the river from the marina. Countless bands played over 400 sets of live music and that didn’t include the many street musicians that entertained for tips. The whole area takes on a festive feel for the beginning of the summer season. This is a do not miss event in the Delta each year.

Kim’s high school pal John dropped by the marina to hang out. Daisy’s brother Henry who is an aspiring pirate also came by to see firsthand what life is like aboard ship. As luck would have it a pirate ship was moored just down the dock from us so we got to thoroughly inspect it.

We had intended to return to Isleton on Tuesday May 31 but we found out that Les along with the Sacramento Marina and West Marine were putting on a “Kids on the Water” day at the marina so we stayed till Thursday to participate and let the children tour Ranger (75 came aboard 10 at a time). The event was a huge success with the first graders making their own miniature racing boats and working on an activity book that Les designed as well as learning much about water safety.

We left that afternoon and Les rode back down the river with me. Down river we made good time with the five knot current at our stern instead of the bow for the journey home.

KIDS ON THE WATER–SACRAMENTO MARINA
Note from the Sacramento Marina, Bud Camper, Marina Manager

“I would like to specifically recognize Les Cochren and Bill Wells of the Classic Yacht Association for their continued dedication and support to our marina and specifically, but not limited to this event, Kids on the Water. They are instrumental volunteers who made the event what it is today. Les is absolutely wonderful at teaching the kids fun boating and water facts and even ties in facts about wooden boats. Bill was more than accommodating about letting the kids aboard his classic yacht, Ranger, so that the kids were able to actually experience what Les was teaching.”
The Marin Classic Car and boat Show will be held again this year on Saturday, July 9th. The NCCYA has registered thirteen yachts from around the Bay and Delta for this always exciting event, including Commodore Welch’s Colleen, Cielito (Mont and Cynthia McMillen), Elizabeth (with newly installed engines, Jim and Bernadette Sweeney), Eslo (Tom and Nancy Clothier), Flamingo (Steve and Cheryl Kadzielawa), Killana (Greg and Amy Sabourin), North Star II (Alan and Barbara Almquist), Renegade (Stuart Kiehl), Sea Gal (Doug and Shaw), Stephanie (Bill and Grace Bodle), Tule Lady (Jim and Carol Staley), and White Swan (Richard and Sandra Solomon).

Jim Sweeney, who is coordinating this event for the fleet and tells me that they expect that about 2,000 people will attend to view the many cars (about 105 by last count) and yachts that will be on display.

This year Marin YC has promised us berths together and close up to the shore line on “B” Dock for maximum exposure for the public viewing. The public will be invited on board our yachts but this invitation is at the discretion of the individual Captains. If you plan to leave your boat unattended for any extended period of time you might want to use the “OPEN” or “CLOSED” signs available from the club for posting.

The Marin YC has offered us free docking for both Friday and Saturday nights for this show. There will be food available all day on Saturday and a special dinner at the club house Saturday night for the exhibitors and members of the club.

As a special feature two lectures are scheduled, one at 1300 hrs and the second at 1400 hrs given by a representative of the Potomac Association. These thirty minute talks followed by a question and answer session will be held in the MYC clubhouse and will review the history of this important yacht and its needs for continual operation on the Bay.

Thanks to Bill Wells for volunteering to make the informational signage for these lectures. At 1500 hrs the Marin YC 7 piece band will begin playing at the entrance to the clubhouse. The Marin YC is charging a $10 entrance fee to the public with all proceeds benefiting Community Action Marin.
A DAY TO REMEMBER

In this world nothing can be said to be certain, except death and taxes. (Benjamin Franklin, 1789). Sorry Ben, but times have changed. The 18th century had Ludwig van Beethoven. The 21st century has Lady Gaga. Maybe someday I will be immortalized with my own updated rendition: Nothing can be said to be certain, except Pat Pending and Opening Day. (Steve K., 2011).

In keeping with tradition, the CYA fleet proudly led the Pacific Inter-Club Yacht Association’s Opening Day parade along the San Francisco waterfront. The PICYA has been hosting the parade since 1917. Seventy years ago to the day, in 1941, the Owen family aboard Pat Pending led the Opening Day parade. At the helm was Don Owen who that year was the president of the PICYA. This year the Owen family with their many guests aboard Pat Pending, led the CYA fleet and the rest of the 150 yachts through the parade route. During that 70 year span, Pat Pending has had a strong and reliable association with this annual yachting event.

Shortly after the parade in 1941, Pat Pending was drafted by the U.S. Navy and saw active duty patrolling the submarine nets across the Golden Gate. This year immediately after the parade Pat Pending, along with the rest of the CYA parade entrants, cruised in to Treasure Island Marina for the traditional afternoon potluck gathering to celebrate the arrival of a new boating season. Other classics in attendance were Eslo, Colleen, Beauty, Sea Gal, Killara, Renegade, Shamrock, and Flamingo. All yachts were dressed in full parade regalia, and with the bright sun illuminating the chrome and varnish, they looked absolutely magnificent passing the check points along the San Francisco waterfront.

After a lengthy winter that continued through Spring, up to and including early June, we were all blessed that the weather on Opening Day was the warmest day of the year to date. Mid afternoon temperatures reached into the low eighties, the winds were light and the water was flat – the recipe for a perfect day to cruise the bay and kick back for the afternoon at Treasure Island. We all caught one heck of a break. We know it and we’ll take it. Wouldn’t it be nice if we could say that nothing can be said to be certain, except for beautiful weather on Opening Day.
